The Free Application for Federal Student Aid (FAFSA) is based on prior-prior-year tax information (tax information from two years prior). The U.S. Department of Education regulates the process of collecting prior- prior year income and uses a formula based on the FAFSA information provided to determine a student's Expected Family Contribution (EFC). The EFC is used to determine the amount of federal aid (grants, loans, work-study) a student may be eligible to receive.

However, we recognize that the Free Application for Student Aid (FAFSA) information may not always accurately portray your current financial situation. If your financial situation has changed due to circumstances beyond your control, you may request a special consideration review of your financial aid eligibility based on those circumstances.

For example, during the 2022-2023 aid year, this process may allow the use of your 2021 federal taxes or July 1, 2021 - June 30, 2022 income instead of the 2020 federal tax information.

Examples that may be considered for review include the following:

- Loss of employment/income
- Divorce or separation (parents or student and for at least six weeks)
- Reduction or end of child support payments received
- Death of a parent or spouse

Examples of circumstances that will NOT be considered for review include the following:

- One-time payment received (such as, but not limited to, lottery/gambling winnings, inheritance, withdrawals from pension, sale of property)
- Bankruptcy

A FAFSA is required before requesting special consideration. Be advised that once a special consideration review has begun, the student will be selected for verification. The verification process will require additional documents, such as prior-prior year tax return (signed) or tax transcript, W-2s, 1099s and verification forms. Additional documents may be requested during the process. The special consideration review will not occur until the verification is complete.

2022-2023 Special consideration reviews will begin May 1, 2022

The special consideration process:

Once all of the requested documents are received, the financial aid specialist will determine if the circumstances qualify for a review and if the change(s) will impact the student's EFC. If the changes do not provide additional federal aid for the student, the process will not proceed. If there is a positive impact on federal aid, the new information will be submitted to FAFSA. The student will receive an updated award letter sent to their ATU email notifying them of the changes. This process usually takes 3 to 4 weeks to complete once all the documents have been received by the ATU Financial Aid office.

How do I submit the special consideration request?

Before submitting a special consideration request, the student must submit a FAFSA and clear all of the red-flags on their financial aid requirements on Onetech.
