ALFRED J. CRABAUGH AWARD

Carson Smith
Russellville, Arkansas

Even the student body president has bad days.

When Carson Smith faced adversity during his time at Arkansas Tech University, he always felt supported by a network of faculty, staff and mentors.

“The people at Arkansas Tech surrounded me with overwhelming support,” said Smith. “They showed up for me with encouragement, compassion and genuine care when I needed it most. Their willingness to stand beside me during those moments reminded me that Arkansas Tech is more than a university...it is a community that looks after its own. That experience changed me.”

Smith began his studies at Arkansas Tech in fall 2022 and quickly became involved in student organizations such as Kappa Sigma fraternity, which he led as president from 2023-25, and Order of Omega, which provided him with the opportunity to lead philanthropic events involving more than 300 fraternity and sorority life students from ATU.

“As I stepped into leadership roles, I reflected on the mentors who guided me and shaped the way I approach leadership,” said Smith. “Their example showed me that leadership is not simply about holding a title, but about serving others and working to improve the lives of those around you.”

Smith carried that philosophy into ATU Student Government Association, first as senator-at-large in spring 2024 before becoming secretary of finance and administration in 2024-25 and president in 2025-26. One of his most significant contributions was serving as a student leader during the planning and construction of Ferguson Student Union.

“Because of the encouragement and belief others placed in me, I gained the confidence to pursue opportunities that once seemed beyond my reach,” said Smith.

Smith is graduating from Arkansas Tech with Bachelor of Science in Business Administration degrees in business management and finance. He will attend the University of Arkansas School of Law beginning in fall 2026.

JILL LESTAGE BROWN SERVICE LEADERSHIP AWARD

Hannah Melton
Clarksville, Arkansas

Hannah Melton went beyond learning about leadership at Arkansas Tech University. She sought out experiences that helped her develop the skillset necessary to become an effective leader.

Melton served as president and vice president of new member education for Delta Zeta, senator in Student Government Association and new student orientation leader.

She said those experiences taught her how to “lead with accountability, empathy and integrity while guiding others toward a shared goal” and that her experiences at ATU “strengthened my confidence, resilience and ability to lead with compassion while balancing academics and service.”

A member of the ATU Honors program, Melton was also active in Order of Omega, intramural sports and ATU Student Activities Board on her way to earning a Bachelor of Science degree in rehabilitation science with minors in disability studies and psychology.

She also served as a student handler for Jerry the Bulldog, ATU campus ambassador, and was a member of the student worker staff in the ATU Division of Student Affairs.

Along the way, Melton found time to give more than 400 hours of service to the community, including summer counselor duties at Painted Turtle Camp in California, as a volunteer for ACTS Junior through Pediatrics Plus, as a volunteer with Junior Auxiliary of Russellville and through the annual Green and Gold Give Back day of service at Arkansas Tech.

“These experiences showed me the importance of creating opportunities for individuals of all abilities to participate in activities and ultimately solidified my desire to pursue a career in occupational therapy,” said Melton. “Arkansas Tech played a significant role in shaping who I am today. The leadership, service opportunities and supportive community I found there made my college experience truly life changing.”

ACADEMIC HERALDRY

A time-honored tradition of great dignity is the wearing of academic apparel. The history of academic dress reaches far back into the early days of the oldest universities. The apparel is a survival of the ecclesiastical garb of the late Middle Ages as well as earlier civilian fashions. The three characteristic elements of academic regalia are the gown, the hood, and the cap.

Gowns may have been necessary for warmth in the unheated buildings frequented by medieval scholars. Hoods seem to have served to cover the shaven crowns of the monks until superseded by the skull cap. The custom of wearing the gown, hood, and cap was first regularly adopted in the thirteenth century at the University of Cambridge with the University of Oxford soon to follow.

In 1895, American universities and colleges decided to standardize their academic styles and an intercollegiate code for academic custom was developed. The standards in this original code were followed precisely until 1932 when a committee was appointed by the American Council on Education (ACE) to study possible revisions. The code approved by that committee remained intact until 1959 when the Committee on Academic Costumes and Ceremonies was appointed by the ACE. This committee is the official body today which governs the standards and regulations of academic costume and ceremony. The academic costume code contains criteria for each item of academic apparel. Only the costume of the chief marshal may be specially designed by the institution--all others must follow traditional guidelines.

The gown is usually of black material--serge, cotton poplin, or worsted for bachelors and masters, and rayon or silk for doctors. Bachelors' gowns have pointed sleeves; masters' have long, closed sleeves, lunate at the bottom, with slits at the elbow; the doctors' have wide round, open sleeves. Doctors' gowns are faced with panels of velvet down the front with three bars across each sleeve. The facings and crossbars may be black or of the color distinctive of the degree category and agreeing in color with the binding on the hood.

The hood, worn around the neck to hang down the back, is the principal emblem of the nature and source of the degree held. It is edged with velvet in the color of the degree, while its lining of silk bears the colors of the institution which granted the degree. No academic hood should ever have its border divided to represent more than a single degree. The binding of the hood should be in widths of two inches, three inches, and five inches for the bachelor's, master's, and doctor's degrees, respectively. In some institutions it is customary for the hood to be dispensed with by those receiving bachelor's degrees.

The cap is the square mortarboard of black cotton poplin, rayon, or silk to match the gown or, for the doctor's degree only, velvet. The tassel may be black for all ranks and degrees or may be of gold thread for doctors and the color of the degree for bachelors and masters. There is no general rule for the position of the tassel on a mortarboard; however, numerous institutions have adopted the practice of wearing the tassels on the right front side before the degrees are conferred and to shift them to the left when the degrees are awarded.

For all academic purposes, the colors associated with the different subjects are as follows:

Accountancy/Business	Drab
Agriculture	Maize
Arts/Letters/Humanities	White
Dentistry	Lilac
Economics	Copper
Education	Light Blue
Engineering	Orange
