N/A

- b. If this course is required for the major or minor, complete the following.

1. Provide the program level learning outcome(s) it addresses.

This course will serve as an introductory course for all degree programs in the department. As such, it will stress similarities among the different divisions to increase student flexibility and make them ready for the careers of the future.

Within Comm Studies, the course will introduce the research/theory goals:

Outcome: Students gain a broad knowledge of communication theories and learn to apply this information to their pragmatic lives.

Outcome: Student's will gain in-depth knowledge, be able to synthesize, and research major concepts of the study of contemporary and traditional perspectives of communication and performance theories.

Within Theatre, the course will introduce the synthesis and media use goals:

Outcome: Produce a short film or live scene as a means of visual storytelling.

Outcome: Demonstrate the above skills by collaborating on a program-wide performance endeavor.

Within Journalism, the course will introduce the critical thinking and doing goals:

(Critical Thinking) Understand characteristics of various media formats and demonstrate how to effectively use each to reach intended audiences.

(Doing) Communicate forms and styles appropriately, accurately and using correct style/grammar for media professions and audiences they serve.

2. Provide tool or measure directly linked to each program learning outcome. (How will student learning in this outcome be measured?)

Learning will be assessed through targeted exam questions.

- c. What is the rationale for adding this course? What evidence demonstrates this need?

In the future, the realms of communication, journalism, theatre & film, and social media influencing will become more interconnected. Students need to understand a wide range of skills to be adept in a changing world. This course will introduce students to the resources/skills that the department has to offer while also creating within them the expectation of being media producers throughout their time at ATU and into the professional lives.

For the proposed course, attach a syllabus in Word format that includes: (Items a. through d. should be entered as they should appear in the catalog)

- a. Course subject
- b. Course number
- c. Catalog course title
- d. Catalog description

Course Description: This course offers an overview of the modern communication and media landscape. Students will explore and be exposed to the different avenues that a professional life in communication and media may take, such as journalism, social media, public relations, filmmaking and broadcasting. In addition, students will examine the deeper knowledge of communication ranging from theory, crisis communication, rhetoric and interpersonal communication.

Justification: Modern communication and media has redefined the way people stay connected to each other. With the exponential expansion of mobile technology and social media, what was once only something within the reach of media empires, the power of mass communication is now literally in the hands of individuals. As a result, it is important to understand how to work in this media landscape but also understand communication knowledge that has been acquired over two thousand years of learning the art and science of communication.

Objectives: Over the course of the semester students will be introduced to the communication and media specialties of the department faculty. The objective is to establish an introductory understanding of the educational offerings within the department of Communication and Media. This exploration of disciplines will then allow students to make informed decisions of both educational and potential career paths.

A short essay from Module 4 of COMM 3513 will also be used for this assessment. This module emphasizes identity studies as it relates to media.
- c. What is the rationale for adding this course? What evidence demonstrates this need?
In the future, communication professionals will need to be savvy users of media. This course teaches media literacy and the critical skills necessary to understand our new communication environments.

As universities move toward more of a media studies approach, classes like this are offered. For example, the U of A requires such a class.

Media and Communication

(D) Catalogue Description

This class explores differing approaches for critiquing media ranging from print, television, film, music, politics and digital communication. Given that today's public sphere is increasingly variegated, students must develop a greater sense of awareness of the ways that these practices have impacted our public sphere. This means developing media literacy skills. Students will be equipped with the critical vocabulary necessary to articulate the ways that media shape our communication environment and social consciousness.

(H) Rationale:

This class addresses a missing gap in the existing curriculum by providing students with the tools necessary to assess and analyze media texts. These types of classes exist in the curriculum at the seminar level, but the students require a basic introduction to the critical vocabularies that define the field of media studies. Also, this class reflects a shift in the department's focus toward media alongside the focus on traditional rhetoric. As students are introduced to new modes of digital eloquence in introductory classes, this course provides them with the tools to deploy critical frameworks to describe and deconstruct mediated texts. This is central to being able to explain how these texts shape our consciousness and define the new consumer landscape each of them will inhabit after graduation. Equally as important, it will give them insight into the ethical and political implications of the ways that identity is articulated across emerging, digital publics.

Course Objectives (I):

- Students will understand the basic critical frameworks that define the field of media criticism.
- Students will perform original critiques of mediated texts.
- Students will explore the ways that digital culture has impacted traditional mass media.
- Students will demonstrate understanding of the ways that media communication shapes consciousness.
- Students will demonstrate an awareness of the ideological and social implications of new media practices.

(J) General Education Objectives:

This class is not part of the general education core. It does however address many of the general education objectives. Students will demonstrate critical reasoning skills. Students will develop a deeper understanding of what it means to communicate effectively. Students will also develop a greater sense of their own responsibility as ethical actors in the digital culture.

(K-L) Assignments:

Short Essays:

You will be asked to prepare 27 short essays (150-200 words) during the course of the semester. These essays will be in response to questions covering course materials and lectures. Most of these questions will ask you to define a key concept for the course then apply it to existing symbolic networks. Each question is worth 10 points. Here is an example:

Sample Question: We explored the rhetorical proofs outlined by Aristotle (ethos, pathos, and logos). Provide a definition for each and explain why they are important for effective communication. Then follow the link to Richard Nixon's Checkers speech and explain how he uses each of the proofs in his speech. Which of the proofs is the most important for Nixon and why?

Sample Answer: Ethos is defined as the speaker's ability to persuade their audience that they share common ethics or experiences with them. This allows the audience to both trust and identify with the speaker. Pathos involves the manipulation of emotion. Humans are not entirely rational creatures and thus they often make decisions based upon their passions such as fear or anger. Finally, logos is the use of good reasons that are both internally consistent and externally valid. You must have evidence for your claim to be successful. In Nixon's Checkers speech vice presidential candidate Senator Nixon responded to allegations that he had stolen money from his own campaign. He used logos when he provided an independent audit of the fund that showed no wrong doing. He used pathos when he suggested that his political opponents will try and steal is children's dog that came as a campaign gift. This provokes both humor and outrage. Finally, he used ethos when he explained how little money his family has and how his wife does not have a mink coat, but wears a "respectable republican cloth coat." This allows the average American to identify with him and not view him as an elitist. Ethos is the most important rhetorical element in this speech because Senator Nixon is responding to attacks on his honesty.

Discussion Board:

I will post discussion questions in the discussion portion of blackboard. There will be six during the course of the semester. Each person should respond to the question and respond to other classmate's commentary. Each thread will be open for one week. You are not being graded on content, but on your willingness to engage others in thoughtful and creative dialogue. Each thread will be worth five points. You should be prepared to respond at least once and preferably two to three times to each thread (5 pts each). You get credit for either starting threads or responding to threads.

Sample Discussion Board:

Sample Question: What is difference between coercion and persuasion?

Sample Commentary: I would say that coercion begins at the point where a person feels that they are being physically threatened. A person must have choice for it to be persuasion.

Tech Support:

If you need technical support you can call (479) 968-0646 or email campussupport@atu.edu.

Grade Scale:

271-300 A

241-270 B

211-240 C

180-210 D

Late Work and Classroom Ethics:

It goes without saying that all work should be original and that you should conform to the guidelines in the student handbook. Do not plagiarize. Let me know if you are having difficulties. I check my email daily and you should hear back within 24 hours. Because this is an online class there are certain rules as to the submission of late work. All work should be submitted by the assigned time and I generally get feedback to you within about 24 to 48 hours. If work is received within three days after the deadline (the next grading period) it will be graded with a 20% deduction and no guarantee of user feedback. If work is submitted after this two week period, it will not be accepted.

(M) Modules

The class will proceed through five main modules, each comprising about three weeks.

Introductory Module: This module will introduce the class and acclimate the students to the idea of looking at media texts as unique forms of communication that shape how they see the world. It will also prepare them for the basic class structure.

Module One: This portion of the class will focus on basic ideological criticism as the first form of rhetorical critique that came to define the field of media studies. This section will drill down on the ways that cultural products are used as basic ideological tools to advance certain aims or agendas. This will include propaganda studies and government driven political campaigns to shape mass consciousness.

Module Two: This section will expand the ideological criticism section to explore more subtle forms of communication reflected in modern theory, moving from the Frankfurt school onward. These texts do not look at particular agendas, but at the ways that consumer technologies have transformed how people look at themselves and their publics. The primary objective is to get the students thinking critically about the dream machine that drives most entertainment media—driving speculation about the real/unreal divide that shapes modern consciousness.

Module Three: Students will be exposed to mythic studies to look at the ways that modern media have accessed certain archaic or archetypal forces that define human experience. These analyses are critical for giving students both an expanded understanding of their role as critics as well as making them more competent storytellers. They will understand the ways that modern digital culture has molded and, in some cases, warped these traditional stories.

Module Four: This section will introduce students to the ways that identity studies have formulated a key area of research for the field of media. Students will have an opportunity to explore paradigms dealing with feminism, ethnic studies, studies of sexuality, disability, etc. This section will give them an opportunity to understand the critical frameworks that provide the ability to unpack the ways that media shape the way we see ourselves.

Module Five: This section will look at the ways that the consumer society defines them as contributors to the social media environment. Here they will understand the implication of reducing themselves to products to be accessed and commoditized by large corporate entities that seek to conflate the spheres of consumer, producer, and product. Here they will be asked to reflect on the fate of modern democracies in a sphere that has become fragmented and variegated by new forms of media use—seeking new vocabularies of social coherence in the face of this changing landscape.

(H) Rationale:

This course will function as a culmination of the student's experiences in the department, martialing all of the skills they have learned throughout the curriculum. The end product will be a project that will shared across appropriate digital platforms. This class will serve multiple functions, including providing students with a portfolio-ready project to use for future employment or graduate school. Faculty from across the department will be invited to submit modules explaining original pieces of research and aesthetic performances reflecting the diversity of the field. It will also be used to showcase the skills of our students across the university and the community through social media networks. Each student will create an original piece of research or aesthetic performance to manifest their experience in the department. They will employ the skills learned in lower level classes to construct projects that are user friendly and contribute to the public information and entertainment. These projects will be audience-driven and relatable to a clearly identified online public. The projects created in this class will allow faculty to assess and fine-tune the skill-sets that they are teaching across the curriculum.

Course Objectives (I):

- Students will be exposed to basic research methodologies.
- Students will receive an overview of the field of communication.
- Students will develop basic storytelling skills.
- Students will produce a culminating project representing either original communication research or aesthetic performance.
- Students will critique one another's projects in a workshop format.

(J) General Education Objectives:

This class is not part of the general education core. It does however address many of the general education objectives. Students will demonstrate critical reasoning skills. Students will develop a deeper understanding of what it means to communicate effectively. Students will also develop a greater sense of their own responsibility as ethical actors in the digital culture.

(K-L) Assignments:

Six Critical Response Essays (20 pts. each): Certain weeks will feature guest faculty content that asks students to respond to an original piece of research or performance. These essays will run from 150-200 words, commenting on the conclusions, methodologies, and aesthetic responses to these pieces.

Facilitation (20 pts.): Each student will be asked to facilitate classroom discussion by asking probing questions designed to elicit peer feedback.

Prospectus (30 pts.): Students will submit a one page prospectus of their project detailing the question or themes to be explored, the nature of the project, and the digital audience(s) that it will address.

Final Project (100 pts.): Students will submit the final project and share it on a digital platform.

Peer Feedback (30 pts.): Students will provide peer-review feedback to selected colleagues, sharing these responses on the digital platform to help spark conversation about the work.

Tech Support:

If you need technical support you can call (479) 968-0646 or email campussupport@atu.edu.

Grade Scale:

271-300 A
241-270 B
211-240 C
180-210 D

Late Work and Classroom Ethics:

It goes without saying that all work should be original and that you should conform to the guidelines in the student handbook. Do not plagiarize. Let me know if you are having difficulties. I check my email daily and you should hear back within 24 hours. Because this is an online class there are certain rules as to the submission of late work. All work should be submitted by the assigned time and I generally get feedback to you within about 24 to 48 hours. If work is received within three days after the deadline (the next grading period) it will be graded with a 20% deduction and no guarantee of user feedback. If work is submitted after this two week period, it will not be accepted.

If you know of a conflict with a school program outside this class, please don't wait to inform me at the last minute. Remember, we are in the School of Communication...so please make an effort to communicate. More than two unexcused absences will automatically result in a lower attendance grade.

Course description: Students will produce a portfolio of original work that demonstrates their mastery of skills taught throughout the journalism curriculum.

Textbook: "The Associated Press Stylebook and Briefing on Media Law," 2022-2024 edition. Faculty will provide other instructional materials.

Course Overview:

- The purpose of the journalism capstone course is to apply the knowledge and skills you obtained in the program to complete a significant journalism project under the direction of a journalism faculty member.
- That project will result in a portfolio of related elements specific to your emphasis area completed during the enrolled semester. When completed, you will have a portfolio of new work suitable for publishing, posting, or broadcasting on a digital platform promoted through social media.
- During the project process, you will draw upon the entirety of your educational and professional experience to propose and produce this substantial piece of high-quality journalistic work. The work will also serve as a transition to what you may face after graduation, thus further preparing you for the workplace.

Course Objectives:

- Demonstrate mastery of learned skills in the journalism curriculum.
- Produce a portfolio of original work consisting of elements specific to each student's emphasis area.
- Provide access to the portfolio on a digital platform.
- Promote portfolio on social media.
- Review each student's work in a workshop format.

Grading: A standard grading scale of 90-100 percent, A; 80-89 percent, B; 70-79 percent, C; 60-69 percent, D; is used in this course.

There are 625 points possible this semester, broken down in the following manner:

In-class assignments:                      375 points*

(Attendance is critical to your overall grade in this class. The in-class activities each week are worth 25 points. Unless extraordinary circumstances prevent you from attending class, you cannot make up those points.)

Portfolio:                                      200 points

Peer review:                                  50 points

Please note: Work submitted after the deadline will be subject to a 15 percent reduction in the score. Work submitted more than one week past the deadline will not be accepted, and that assignment will earn a zero.

Weekly Schedule:

Week 1: Introduction to class.

For more information please visit: <http://www.atu.edu/titleix/index.php>.

Student needs statement: Students who face challenges securing their food or housing and believe this may affect their performance in the course are urged to notify the instructor, if they are comfortable in doing so. Community resources are available for students and can be found at the following webpage:

<https://www.atu.edu/localresources/>

If students find they need more support, they are encouraged to contact the Office of the Vice President for Student Services at 479-968-0238.

If you need an accommodation due to a disability, please contact the ATU Office of Disability Services, located in Doc Bryan Student Center, Suite 171, or visit <http://www.atu.edu/disabilities/index.php>.

Academic integrity: I expect each student to abide by the Student Academic Conduct Policies, outlined in the Student Handbook. Among the areas discussed in that section of the handbook is plagiarism. In journalism, there are few sins greater than that of plagiarism, which is stealing someone's ideas or writings and presenting them as your own. It will not be tolerated in this class. When you use material written by someone else, you MUST attribute that information to your source. Cutting and pasting information from websites into your stories is NOT research. It is plagiarism and will be considered grounds for a grade of zero on that assignment.

others so that they can make sound decisions in their writing and media usage. As universities move toward more of a media studies approach, classes like this are offered. For example, the U of A requires such a class.

Course Description

There are many significant changes to contemporary media. About these changes, we need to think critically about recent media developments as well as the many enduring relationships between media and society. In Media and Society, we take an interdisciplinary approach with a sociological focus to answer questions like How do people use the media in their everyday lives? and How has the evolution of technology affected the media and how we use them? Our approach to media allows us to cover a wide range of questions. In addition, this class incorporates the latest scholarship and data that address enduring media topics, as well as new concerns raised by the role of digital platforms, the impact of misinformation online, and the role of media during the COVID-19 pandemic.

Course Goals

By the end of this course, students will be able to know

- How has the evolution of technology affected the media and how we use them?
- How does the business of media operate, and why does this matter?
- How do the professional norms, economic influences, and regulatory constraints that characterize media institutions influence what we see (or don't see) in our media?
- How well does media content reflect the range of realities in our diverse society and our world?
- How do people use the media in their everyday lives?
- What influences do the media seem to be having on us and our society?

Required Course Material

Croteau, D. R., Hoynes, W. D., & Childress, C. (2022). Media/Society: Technology, Industries, Content, and Users (7th ed.). Thousand Oaks, CA.

Evaluation Procedures

Exams (45%)

There will be three exams during this semester. The exams will contain multiple choices, true/false, short answers, and/or matching “objective” questions that measure your understanding of mass communication theories, research findings, and application of theories. Questions on the test will be taken from class discussions and the reading. Three exams are worth 45% of the final grade (15% for each exam). The first two exams will be administered in a class and closed book and notes. The final exam will be administered via Blackboard and open book and notes.

Individual Assignments (45%) + a

Assignment 1. Media Inventory Paper (10%)

The objective of this paper is to make you aware of your own media consumption. You will be asked to monitor your media use for one week and then write a 3-4 page paper (800 to 1000 words) describing when and why you use media these days, and for what purposes or outcomes. The first half of the paper should detail your media usage and will count for 50% of the grade. The second half of the paper (also 50% of the grade) should focus on self-reflection and address these key questions:

- How much (and which) of your media usage is routine? (You engage with the same media at the same time, habitually)
- How much (and which) of your media usage is social? (You experience it with other people or interact with other people.)
- Has your media usage changed over time (e.g., since you entered college)?
- In reflecting on your media usage, what has surprised you?
- What do you think is significant about the answers to the above questions?
- A more detailed grading rubric will be provided later in the semester.

Assignment 2. Media Product Analysis (25%)

This larger assignment (8-10 page paper; 2000 to 2500 words) requires you to engage in and collect original research. While a more detailed assignment sheet and rubric will be provided later in the semester, this analysis paper requires you to respond to the following question.

- Take a closer look at a larger media product (a television series spread across multiple seasons, the work of a major artist, a genre of music, a form of television like the sitcom, a film or book series, a genre of Internet content, the albums of a prominent musical artist, etc.) and discuss: (a) the history of that cultural product and/or artist, (b) the lessons it offers in terms of cultural production, (c) what the product says about representations of individuals and groups, and (d) the ultimate significance of this product as a cultural force.
- For example, you may focus on an important key television series like: Mad Men, Sex and the City, Entourage, *M*A*S*H*. Other projects could look at genres of content (reality TV programming, punk music, video games, young adult novels, characters in animated movies, etc.) We will spend more time brainstorming potential topics of interest later in the semester.

- A more detailed grading rubric will be provided later in the semester.
- The final analysis paper will be due by the last day of the course.
- While more detailed instructions will follow for each assignment, it is important to note that all papers should be written in 12-point Times New Roman font. Papers should be double-spaced and have 1" margins all around. Make sure you add page numbers to your paper in the footer and put your name in the header (you'd be surprised how many people forget). A reference list (if applicable) should be on a separate final page(s). Everything should be uploaded as one word document (.doc or .docx) with your Last Name_Assignment as the title (e.g., Becker_Paper1). We use APA style for citing all references. For more information on APA style, visit: <https://apastyle.apa.org/style-grammar-guidelines/references/examples>

Assignment 3. Presentation (10%)

During the final weeks of the course, you will prepare a highimpact, brief presentation of your media product analysis_paper (10 minutes/kind of like a "TED talk"). In your presentation, you'll want to summarize your key argument, grab our attention, and engage with the audience. Your presentation will be evaluated by the instructor and receive peer feedback. We will pick presentation dates towards the end of the semester. All materials will be due online in advance of the first presentation session (by _____)

Attendance (10%)

It is expected that you attend every class meeting. There will be concepts and issues covered in class that are not addressed in the readings. If you miss a class, it is your responsibility to get notes and a review from a classmate. Please do not ask or expect the instructors to repeat materials covered in class because you were not there. Two absences will be allowed this semester. After the second absence, you will lose 20 points out of 100 per absence. Since two absences are allowed, the documented notes for absence will not be accepted except for official school activities.

Blackboard

Blackboard will be used as a key tool for posting course documents and communicating with students. Course syllabus, lecture notes (with blanks), study guides, and assignment guidelines will be posted on a Blackboard course site to preserve natural resources and as references. All grades including your final grade will be updated via the site as well. Since lecture notes as a form of PowerPoint with blanks are posted on the site, students are required to bring hard copies of lecture notes to class meetings.

Course Policies

Classroom Behavior

Each member of the Arkansas Tech University community is obliged to conduct her/himself in a non-disruptive manner in the classroom. If a student is being disruptive, the instructor will address the situation, discuss behavioral expectations moving forward, and emphasize possible consequences for failing to comply. If the disruptive behavior persists, the student may be suspended on an interim basis from the class. Instructors may report excessive and/or repeated disruptive behavior through the Procedures for Addressing Violations of Academic Integrity and Classroom Behavior. This process includes an appeals process students may use to challenge perceived violations or excessive penalties. Students who exhibit disruptive behavior may also be referred to the Department of Student Conduct (see Article III, Section C of the Arkansas Tech University Student Handbook).

If a classroom incident constitutes an emergency (e.g., any immediate threat to life and/or property) and requires an immediate response from police, fire, or emergency medical services, please call 911.

Participation

Students are expected and encouraged to participate in class discussions. As the instructor for the course, I very much value and respect your contribution, feedback, and questions. Please know that your input will always be taken seriously – I am here to help you, and I want for you to succeed. We also want to learn from your insights and contributions. So please participate -- we will all benefit!

Contact with Instructors

- Should you have questions, concerns, or comments about any aspect of this class, you are more than welcome to visit the instructors during their office hours or other arranged appointments.
- I will do my best to answer any e-mail within a reasonable period of time (e.g., 2 days). However, I request that you treat e-mail as professional correspondence (i.e., include salutations, appropriate subject lines, etc.). Please note that you should use your ATU e-mail address when corresponding with the instructor.

Missed/Late Work

Missed/late work is not an option in this class. The exams are to be taken at the scheduled times. Rides home, exams in other classes, late nights, etc. do not constitute reasons for taking the exam at an alternate time. Deadlines for assignments are firm. One letter grade will be deducted for each day an assignment is late beyond the deadline. Please do not ask for exceptions to these policies – doing so will result in our referring you to this section of the syllabus.

Academic Integrity

Academic integrity is the pursuit of scholarly and creative activity in an open, honest and responsible manner, free from fraud and deception, and is an educational objective of the ATU. Cheating, including plagiarism, falsification of research data, using the same assignment for more than one class, turning in someone else's work, or passively allowing others to copy your work, will result in academic penalties at the discretion of the instructor, and may result in the grade of “F.”

Cell Phones and Texting

All cell phones must be turned off during classroom hours. To that end, “texting” during class will not be tolerated. If this becomes a problem, students found texting will be asked to leave the classroom.

Student Needs Statement

Any student who faces challenges securing their food or housing and believes this may affect their performance in the course is urged to notify the instructor if they are comfortable in doing so. Community resources are available for students and can be found at the following webpage:

<https://www.atu.edu/localresources/>

If a student finds they need more support, they are encouraged to contact the Office of the Vice President for Student Services (479-968-0238).

Textbook: "The Associated Press Stylebook and Briefing on Media Law," 2022-2024 edition. Faculty will provide other instructional materials.

Course Overview:

- The purpose of the journalism capstone course is to apply the knowledge and skills you obtained in the program to complete a significant journalism project under the direction of a journalism faculty member.
- That project will result in a portfolio of related elements specific to your emphasis area completed during the enrolled semester. When completed, you will have a portfolio of new work suitable for publishing, posting, or broadcasting on a digital platform promoted through social media.
- During the project process, you will draw upon the entirety of your educational and professional experience to propose and produce this substantial piece of high-quality journalistic work. The work will also serve as a transition to what you may face after graduation, thus further preparing you for the workplace.

Course Objectives:

- Demonstrate mastery of learned skills in the journalism curriculum.
- Produce a portfolio of original work consisting of elements specific to each student's emphasis area.
- Provide access to the portfolio on a digital platform.
- Promote portfolio on social media.
- Review each student's work in a workshop format.

Grading: A standard grading scale of 90-100 percent, A; 80-89 percent, B; 70-79 percent, C; 60-69 percent, D; is used in this course.

There are 625 points possible this semester, broken down in the following manner:

In-class assignments:                      375 points*

(Attendance is critical to your overall grade in this class. The in-class activities each week are worth 25 points. Unless extraordinary circumstances prevent you from attending class, you cannot make up those points.)

Portfolio:                                      200 points

Peer review:                                  50 points

Please note: Work submitted after the deadline will be subject to a 15 percent reduction in the score. Work submitted more than one week past the deadline will not be accepted, and that assignment will earn a zero.

Weekly Schedule:

Academic integrity: I expect each student to abide by the Student Academic Conduct Policies, outlined in the Student Handbook. Among the areas discussed in that section of the handbook is plagiarism. In journalism, there are few sins greater than that of plagiarism, which is stealing someone's ideas or writings and presenting them as your own. It will not be tolerated in this class. When you use material written by someone else, you MUST attribute that information to your source. Cutting and pasting information from websites into your stories is NOT research. It is plagiarism and will be considered grounds for a grade of zero on that assignment.

UNDERGRADUATE CERTIFICATE OF PROFICIENCY (6-21 SEMESTER CREDIT HOURS)

An undergraduate certificate program consisting of 6-21 semester credit hours. The curriculum, list of required courses, new course descriptions, the goals, objectives and student learning outcomes, projected annual enrollment, and justification/need for offering the new program must be submitted with the Letter of Notification. If the certificate program is designed for professional certification or licensure, documentation of appropriate agency/board initial review/approval also must be submitted.

5. Name of proposed Undergraduate Certificate of Proficiency (Program must consist of 6-21 semester credit hours): Broadcast Journalism
6. Proposed CIP Code: 09.0401
7. Reason for proposed program implementation: For over twenty years, the ATU Journalism degree has been constructed along three separate options---Broadcast, Print, and Public Relations. In order to allow more flexibility in the bachelors degree to meet a changing market, the Communication and Media Studies department has elected to discontinue these tracks (options) so that students can take more coursework spanning the options. However, in order to serve student interest in these degrees, we propose to convert them from options to certificates---allowing interested students to pursue these areas of study while now earning a credential.
8. Provide the following:
  - a. Curriculum outline - List of courses in new program – Underline required courses
Jour 2253 Basic Video Editing
Jour 3183 Digital News Writing

This hands-on application will develop the physical and mental skills necessary to evolve in the TV production field. [This course replaces Intro to Telecommunications which used to be required of those pursuing the Broadcast Journalism option. This new course is more hands-on and will better prepare students for the camera use required in the other courses]
  - d. Program goals and objectives
LO1: Students will demonstrate a thorough knowledge of a non-linear editing workspace.
LO2: Students will write correctly and clearly in forms and styles appropriate for the broadcast profession.

5. PROGRAM SUMMARY

A degree in Social Influencing degree anticipates and parallels trends taking place in the professional world, namely, the problem that messages are no longer controlled by the messenger. Film companies, manufacturers, public agencies, for example, no longer maintain control over their own brand because what influences public perception is not merely the result of advertising, but those who can influence that perception “socially.” This program teaches students how to be social influencers—professionals that assist employers in creating perceptions of their products or services. Historically, this has taken the form of testimonials, product placements in film or television, and celebrity advocates. With the rise of alternative media, broadcast platforms, and new technologies, social influencers have replaced old-style tactics of perception formation.

The Department of Communication and Media Studies can be key in attracting students to this new field, in which they would learn both historical methods of mass communication, but also the new technologies and methods used in the burgeoning field of social influencing. Though none so far in Arkansas, many colleges and universities are offering training in this, including Temple University, Michigan State University, and Point Loma Nazarene University (PNLU). If approved, this degree will put ATU ahead of the curve in this rising area because it reinforces the notion that students learning the technologies and skills of newer forms of communication is strategic. Additionally, with this degree, ATU can match the personnel needs of companies and agencies who recognize that their messaging must take place within new social media platforms and not necessarily rely on traditional marketing outlets that are becoming less effective in the swirling mediaverse, around which clusters of media platforms are centered, branching out to inform and persuade audiences in non-traditional ways and with non-traditional forms.

The proposed degree provides many benefits, including

1. Amplifying and extending the expertise currently available among the Communication and Media Studies faculty. This includes public relations, filmmaking, multimedia, social media, and performance skills.
2. Making use of new equipment and technologies already purchased for program expansion, including items for broadcast, multimedia presentation, and other virtual environments.
3. Preparing students for workforce, as social influencers are beginning to be used by companies to expand their reach into the marketplace through a cultivation of their social media presence.
4. Reaching into a new academic arena that is driven by current workforce needs.

Curriculum Additions

The proposed major will require two new courses. These courses will be used across the department, not just for Social Media Influencing:

COMM/JOUR 1023 Exploration of Comm/Media
COMM 4823 or JOUR 4823 Senior Capstone

Program Costs

ATU's Communication and Media Studies Department is uniquely situated to offer this degree, which can be added using mostly courses and supplies that already exist. There will be no need at this point for additional faculty or facilities.

Faculty Resources

Communication and Media Studies already has faculty in the areas that will be needed for this program---journalism (including broadcast and multimedia), communication, and performance (theatre).

Library Resources

The library has recently constructed audio and audiovisual labs. They will be useful to the program. No additional library resources will be required for this degree.

Facilities and Equipment

Supporting Degree Programs

Communication (Speech and Theatre)

Journalism (Broadcast, Print, PR)

6. NEED FOR THE PROGRAM

Given that University is searching for new programs to implement as part of the new University Strategic Plan and as part of the Strategic Enrollment and Retention Plan (SERC), the proposed Social Influencing degree fits the notion under Item that new programs should encourage innovation. The need for people trained in the tools and delivery models for social influencing can be demonstrated by the way in which public officials and spokespersons for companies have moved away from traditional models of information dissemination using digital platforms and social media, thereby reshaping the field of media studies. ATU is positioned strongly to meet this new digital environment by blending the traditional disciplines of communication, theatre, speech, and journalism with the latest trends in digital tools and technologies. Without this blend of skills, those entering any part of the communications market will have difficult thriving since they must be skilled in traditional writing, speaking, and information gathering, even as they are now operating within alternative information networks. This degree recognizes that while traditional careers within journalism and media are disappearing, they are being reborn in the new economy as digitally embedded in businesses, media corporations, and governmental agencies. Providing students with old and new skillsets will have a profound effect on their ability to participate in the emerging political, cultural, and economic landscapes that are transforming communities and the nation at large. This degree will provide students with the technical background necessary to thrive in a host of new fields that currently need or will soon require employees who can influence the media environments in which employers find themselves. From a broader business perspective, the degree will teach students the problem-solving and organizational skills entrenched in those new environments, so they can more easily influence the outcomes and the directions of those employers. Further, given the current financial imperatives of ATU, this degree makes use of the courses in the Communication and Media Studies curricula, and with its relatively small credit hour requirements, it could easily be paired with other majors for those who imagine career as a social influencer within a specific field or market.

According to Morning Consult, out of 2,000 young people surveyed, 54% would like to be a social media influencer. While there are many programs nation-wide that focus on social media marketing, there are virtually none that take an academic approach to social media influencing. As more companies are choosing to invest advertising dollars in influencing sponsorships and partnerships and as influencers continue driving the “creator economy,” it makes sense to provide Arkansan students with an educational opportunity to pursue and succeed in this emerging field.

According to the Bureau of Labor Statistics:

Employment in media and communication occupations is projected to grow 14 percent from 2020 to 2030, faster than the average for all occupations, and will result in about 151,500 new jobs. Demand for media and communication occupations is expected to arise from the need to create, edit, translate, and disseminate information through a variety of different platforms.

The median annual wage for media and communication workers (such as announcers, interpreters and translators, and technical writers) was $61,310 in May 2020, which was higher than the median annual wage for all occupations of $41,950.

Media and communication equipment workers (such as broadcast and sound engineering technicians, film and video editors, and photographers) had a median annual wage of $50,870 in May 2020, higher than the median annual wage for all occupations in the economy.

According to the Workforce Analysis from the state of Arkansas, “the demand could be high” for employees with the skills to increase the social media presence of an employee. The report suggests that there is no need to create social media influencers per se, but that the skills of social media influencing will be very useful to companies. Our proposed program would teach the deep skills of content creation while allowing students to combine the degree with coursework in other areas, therefore allowing students to tailor their degrees for their individual career paths.

Many of our graduates are already getting jobs as media managers for companies. This program could help to prepare these students even more for the changing landscape of information and public relations.

ENDORSEMENTS

From Rebecca Mosler, ATU '17 employed by Acorn Influence:

My name is Rebecca Mosler, and I am a 2017 graduate of Arkansas Tech University. I majored in Public Relations with a minor in Social Media. I am currently an Account Manager at Acorn Influence in Rogers, Arkansas.

At Acorn, we work very closely with influencers. We contract influencers and carry out marketing campaigns on behalf of a long list of CPG companies. We're basically the middle man between brands and influencers. My background is in digital marketing, but making the transition to influencer marketing this last year has been eye-opening. Influencer marketing is a huge industry, and it is constantly growing. Most people think about celebrity influencers or influencers with a large following being the only ones profiting from paid advertisements on social media but in reality, influencers with as little as 5-10K followers can be used and establish a profitable career in influencing.

That's why I believe this program would be such an asset to the university. The marketing industry is shifting to user-generated content and influencer marketing. There's an aspect of trust behind influencers promoting products/services to their loyal following, which results in a much higher ROI than traditional advertising. The typical influencer in our network will be paid anywhere from $750-$5000 plus for any given campaign. It depends on a variety of factors, such as the campaign budget and the amount of work required from the influencer. But all of that to say, if an influencer is contracted for 2 posts a month at an average of $1500, that equals out to about $36,000 for the year. Which is about $6,000 over the entry-level salary I earned from my first job out of college working 40 hours a week.

Social media influencing can be a very lucrative career and is in demand right now, from the local scale to the national scale. With this degree, students aren't limited to a career as an influencer. They could go into digital marketing, shopper marketing, account management, etc, and would be equipped with the tools necessary to understand the industry, platforms, and the art that is involved in influencer marketing.

From Caly Allen, ATU '16 (GR '18), who works with the Army National Guard:

Hello my name is Caly Allen, I am a 2016 and 2018 graduate of Arkansas Tech University. I have my bachelors in Broadcast Journalism with a minor in Business and a masters in Multimedia Journalism. I am currently the first Social Media Specialist contracted out by the Army National Guard (ARNG) and reside at the Strength Maintenance Training Battalion (SMTB) on Camp Robinson in North Little Rock, AR.

At the SMTB, I create content for all social media platforms as well as design courseware to teach ARNG Soldiers how to utilize social media. Most recently I've created a pilot program for the ARNG to create virtual recruiters. Ultimately, these virtual recruiters will be utilizing social media to enlist people into the National Guard. The ARNG saw the need to have a stronger presence on social media with their target demographic being the ages of 17 to 34. The classes I've created will help the Soldiers to grow their presence on their channels while also learning basic fundamentals of social media.

Social media is an ever-growing platform that will be shaping the world as we know it. It actually already has. We have seen this in the most recent trial of Johnny Depp v. Amber Heard. Where it was not only televised on social media, but allowed people with a small following to become viral overnight. The unique thing about social media is that you only need to find your niche and then your platform will grow from there. You have to be dedicated and love what you do in order to be successful on social media. This is key. With a social media influencing degree, future students will not only be more equipped to run their own business on social media, but will also open doors to other successful careers whether it is in marketing or as a social media specialist.

It is important to note that this degree will always be changing. There will always be a new or better way to utilize social media. I always tell the Soldiers that come through SMTB that they have to want it. If you don't care about social media, you will not be successful. With the phenomenal instructors at the Energy Center, I have no doubt that these future students will be fortunate enough to graduate with the knowledge I wish I had on social media in 2016.

STUDENT SURVEYS

The following survey was distributed to current ATU students:

Using the scale below, please report the number for each statement that most closely matches your thoughts about a Social Media Influencing degree. Just reply to this email and you can put your number by the statement/question.

Use this scale to answer each statement

Strongly Disagree 1-----2-----3-----4-----5 Strongly Agree

1. I am interested in social media influencing. Your numbered response: _____
2. I would like to know more about social media influencing. Your numbered response: _____
3. I believe that social media influencing will be important to my future career. Your numbered response: _____
4. I would enroll in courses related to social media influencing. Your numbered response: _____
5. If social media influencing were an academic program at Tech, I would consider adding it as a major or double-major. Your numbered response: _____

This survey was distributed to current majors. Unfortunately, due to the timing of the survey, only 5 students responded. However, of these 5, 3 (60%) agreed or strongly agreed that they would consider adding social media influencing as a major.

To get a better sense of student interest, we distributed the same survey to students enrolled in Communication and Media Studies Summer I courses. 61 students completed the survey. These students were taking both majors courses and General Education courses. Of this group, 17 out of 61 (approximately 28%) agreed or strongly agreed that they would consider adding social media influencing as a major.

In both groups, the majority of survey-takers indicated that they were interested in social media influencing, wanted to know more about it, and believed it would be important for their careers.

NEW COURSES:

The courses listed below are part of a larger curriculum redesign within the Department of Communication and Journalism. The plan is to ensure that students gain a wider breadth of skills by capitalizing on what the department offers (the Exploration course) while also allowing flexibility in how to use the skills taught (the capstones).

Comm/Jour 1023 Exploration of Communication and Media (cross-listed in Comm and Jour). This course offers an overview of the modern communication and media landscape. Students will explore and be exposed to the different avenues that a professional life in communication and media may take, such as journalism, social media, public relations, filmmaking and broadcasting. In addition, students will examine the deeper knowledge of communication ranging from theory, crisis communication, rhetoric and interpersonal communication. [This course will be required of all of the department's students, in all majors---Communication, Journalism, Social Media Influencing, Theatre.]

Comm 4823 Senior Capstone in Communication. This class provides an opportunity to generate an original work of research or aesthetic performance to be distributed and consumed with the digital sphere. It provides an overview of the field of communication studies, through interpersonal, media, and performance. Students will then select a topic dealing with the practice of communication and create an original work that will stand as their capstone project. Students will also be expected to workshop one another's projects. [This course will be required of all of Communication and Theatre majors. Social Media Influencing majors may choose this course or JOUR 4823.]

Jour 4823 Senior Capstone in Journalism. Students will produce a portfolio of original work that demonstrates their mastery of skills taught throughout the journalism curriculum. Course Overview:

- The purpose of the journalism capstone course is to apply the knowledge and skills you obtained in the program to complete a significant journalism project under the direction of a journalism faculty member.
- That project will result in a portfolio of related elements specific to your emphasis area completed during the enrolled semester. When completed, you will have a portfolio of new work suitable for publishing, posting, or broadcasting on a digital platform promoted through social media.
- During the project process, you will draw upon the entirety of your educational and professional experience to propose and produce this substantial piece of high-quality journalistic work. The work will also serve as a transition to what you may face after graduation, thus further preparing you for the workplace.

[This course will be required of all of Journalism majors. Social Media Influencing majors may choose this course or Comm 4823.]

General Education requirements at Arkansas Tech:

General Education Requirements

The general education curriculum is designed with the philosophy of "college, career, community" to provide a foundation for knowledge common to educated people and to develop the capacity for an individual to expand that knowledge over his or her lifetime. ## ATU ADMISSIONS REQUIREMENTS:

ENTERING FRESHMAN / NEW STUDENT:

New students to Arkansas Tech University must submit an application for admission, college entrance exam scores, and a record documenting completion of secondary requirements. If you have concurrent college credit, an official transcript from that institution is required. For Advanced Placement (AP), College Level Examination Program (CLEP), or International Baccalaureate (IB) credit, original score reports or a certified copy from your high school will need to be submitted prior to credit being awarded. A minimum criterion for exam scores and grade point average is listed below:

Composite ACT score of 19 or above, composite SAT score of 1010 or above on the RSAT scale of 1600 or a composite SAT score of 1330 on the former SAT exam with a scale of 2400, or a composite Next Generation ACCUPLACER score of 246. Note: The ACT Writing exam is not required for admission purposes.

Completion of graduation requirements from a public secondary school, private secondary school, or a home school program documenting a minimum 2.0/4.0 cumulative grade point average, and completion of the university's secondary school core curriculum, OR minimum GED score of 580.

Students who have scored accordingly on an Advanced Placement (AP), College Level Examination Program (CLEP), or International Baccalaureate (IB) can earn credit toward graduation at Arkansas Tech University by receiving a qualifying score on the examinations. These credits can satisfy general education requirements. AP, CLEP, and IB scores should be documented on your application for admission. Submit official score reports or readable copies embossed by your high school to the Office of Admissions. Students who have earned an International Baccalaureate (IB) should submit their IB transcript for evaluation. Students who successfully complete the International Baccalaureate Diploma Programme can earn credit toward graduation at Arkansas Tech University.

Freshmen who do not meet unconditional admission requirements will be conditionally admitted with a minimum composite ACT score of 15, composite SAT score of 850 or above on the RSAT scale of 1600 or a composite SAT score of 1060 on the former SAT exam with a scale of 2400, or a composite Next Generation ACCUPLACER score of 229, and by completing college core with a 2.0/4.0 grade point average or minimum GED score of 580.

RETURNING STUDENT:

Students who have not attended Arkansas Tech in the past year or have attended another college or university since last attending Tech must submit a new application for admission. Minimum grade point average requirements are listed below:

Has not attended another college since attending Tech
Cumulative Tech GPA of 2.0 or higher
Has attended another college since attending Tech
Cumulative Tech GPA of 2.0 or higher
Official college transcript(s) documenting a cumulative college GPA of 2.0 or higher
Must be eligible for re-enrollment at the last institution attended

TRANSFER STUDENT:

Students who have not attended Arkansas Tech University must submit an application for admission and official transcripts from each institution previously attended.

If transferring less than 24 credit hours, an official high school transcript and ACT, SAT, or ACCUPLACER scores must be submitted. Transfer students with more than 24 hours, who have not completed college level English or math, will be required to submit test scores. Arkansas Tech University will recognize transfer credit from a U.S. institution provided that the institution is accredited by one of the six U.S. regional accreditation associations, and for courses that are approved for transfer by ADHE through ACTS. Acceptance of course credit may depend on the date that the institution was accredited or the date that a course was approved for transfer by ADHE. Transfer credit for coursework from institutions outside the U.S. will be considered on an individual basis. Students seeking transfer of credit from a foreign college/university must complete a credential evaluation through a company authorized by Arkansas Tech University (a list of approved service providers can be obtained in the IMSSO or in the Registrar's Office). Transfer credit, although accepted by the university, is not guaranteed to be applicable toward meeting degree requirements for the particular program of study selected by the transfer student. Once admitted, your academic advisor will determine which credits count toward your degree requirements.

Minimum grade point average requirements are listed below:

All transfers must be eligible for re-enrollment at the last institution attended and have a cumulative college GPA of 2.0

If you do not meet the admission requirements for unconditional admittance and/or have been denied admission, you may submit an admissions appeal addressing the applicant's grounds for appeal. The appeal should be addressed to the Office of Admissions. If you need further details on any of the information above, email the Office of Admissions at admissions@atu.edu. ## 9. DESCRIPTION OF RESOURCES

Library Resources for Proposed Program: Bachelor of Arts in Social Media Influencing at Arkansas Tech University

Current library resources in the field

The library subscribes to a few selected databases that index and provide full-text for current research specifically in the fields of communication, journalism, mass media, and theater.

- Communication Source – Full-text access to 323 active journals in the field of communication, linguistics, rhetoric and discourse, media studies, and other fields relevant to the discipline. Includes abstract and indexing for 927 active journals, 889 of which are peer-reviewed. [Ebsco]
- Communications and Mass Media – Provides full-text access to 510 academic journals and magazines focusing on all aspects of the communications field. Key subjects covered in the database include advertising and public relations, literature and writing, linguistics, and more. [Gale OneFile]
- Telecommunications Database – Includes access to 316 trade journals, academic journals, magazines, and other materials focused on the technology of the communications industry and its influence. [ProQuest]
- Digital Theatre Plus – A collection of videos, articles, courses, and interviews about theater production, set design, acting, directing, writing, criticism, and marketing. Includes video and audio of full theatrical productions.

Additionally, the library subscribes to several multi-disciplinary databases featuring peer-reviewed research, trade journal articles, reports, statistics, videos, and ebooks in the arts & humanities, marketing, psychology, and other social sciences.

The library also purchases individual ebooks, books, journals, videos, and other resources selected by a professional librarian with recommendations from instructional faculty in the department of Communications and Journalism. The annual monograph and video budget for the department is $575.

Current instructional facilities including classrooms, instructional equipment and technology, laboratories (if applicable).

The Ross Pendergraft Library and Technology Center

This facility includes 180 publicly accessible computers, including 6 Mac computers and 37 Desktop computers. The library's multi-media makerspaces include an audio recording studio, a video production lab, and a music media computer lab. Faculty can reserve four computer labs in addition to the music studio lab for instructional use, as well as two large classrooms and one conference room. Each classroom and computer lab come equipped with overhead projectors, desktop computers, microphone, document camera, and lecture-capture capabilities. The library also features color printing, mobile printing, copiers, scanners, a book scanner, a laminator, a microfilm reader/scanner, and access to the Tech wireless network. Faculty and students are able to reserve private and group study rooms, laptops, headphones, headsets, dry-erase markers, mobile dry-erase boards, webcams, calculators, DVD/Blu-Ray external drives, and other traditional library materials.

The Ross Pendergraft Library and Technology Center also houses the Office of Information Systems computer help desk for the campus, as well as the university's tutoring center.

OTHER FACILITIES/LABORATORIES/INSTRUCTIONAL EQUIPMENT

This program was designed to build off equipment and facilities that we already have.

The Communication and Media Studies Department is housed in the Energy Center. The Energy Center has four classrooms with instructional computers and projectors. It also has a lab with 19 desktop computers. Each computer is equipped with software including Adobe Creative Cloud. The Energy Center includes a television studio with HD cameras, teleprompters, and a control room equipped with a switcher, graphics system, audio console, and video playout. It also has a sound recording booth with a mixer recording software and mics. The department shares a mobile production trailer with the ATU athletics department. That trailer has cameras, a switcher, audio, replay, and graphics.

The Theatre Program within the department is housed at the Techionery theatre, a 100+ seat performance space. This theatre includes a scene shop, costume and backstage facilities. Theatrical equipment includes newly updated computer-controlled stage lighting, including two intelligent lights, and a new surround-sound system and soundboard. Film-making equipment includes a 4K camera, dolly with track, jib, boom/lav mics, and portable lighting kits.

10. NEW PROGRAM COSTS – Expenditures for the first 3 years

As stated throughout this proposal, the program is designed to use pre-existing courses, faculty, and resources, making use of them in innovative ways. Because our department already includes faculty/coursework in the following areas---broadcast journalism, public relations, social media, communication, film-making, and theatrical performance---this degree is a perfect match for what we already have.

11. SOURCE OF PROGRAM FUNDING – Income for the first 3 years of program operation

See above.

12. ORGANIZATIONAL CHART REFLECTING NEW PROGRAM

The proposed program will be housed in the Department of Communication and Media Studies in the College of Arts & Humanities at ATU.

13. SPECIALIZED REQUIREMENTS

N/A,

14. BOARD OF TRUSTEES APPROVAL

Provide the date that the Board approved (or will consider) the proposed program.

---

Arkansas Code Annotated §6-61-208 charges the Arkansas Higher Education Coordinating Board (AHECB) with the responsibility to evaluate proposals for all new units of instruction, research, and public service, consistent with established role and scope designations, and to approve programs and organizational units based on established policies. The program approval policy was updated and clarified in 2004.

In the Fall semester of 2012, I began teaching my first Journalism course, New Media News Gathering.

New Media New Gathering Course Description: In this class, students will learn the step-by-step process of crafting a professional news story. This course teaches the core skills of writing and editing scripts, camera use and functions, and basic video editing. We will also spend time creating “voice-overs” and learning how to use “stand-ups” to help tell the story. Coursework is designed to help students learn how to gather information, then construct news packages for Tech TV and their social media site. The only way to acquire these skills is through practice; therefore, each student will rotate between photog, reporter, and editor positions within a designated group.

In the Spring semester of 2013, I also began teaching TV News Production.

TV News Production Course Description: In this course, students apply and build on the skills acquired from New Media News Gathering. Students will study the major components of a newscast, such as creating content for broadcast using Inception News software, scriptwriting, creating news packages, voice-overs, and VO/SOT’s. By the end of the semester, the student will better understand all elements that make up a newscast.

According to their field knowledge, students will produce Investigative, Hard News, Feature, NATs Pack, Multicultural Profile, and Community Issue packages. The students will rotate to a different position for each news package to get the practical experience needed. Each person in the group will be required to shoot video, write scripts and anchor intro, deliver a stand-up, and edit the final package. Also, a written and edited VO/SOT will be due the following week for each package turned in. All coursework is designed to prepare each student for the final project.

In the Fall semester of 2013, I continued to teach New Media News Gathering and added Advanced Video Editing to my courses.

Advanced Video Editing Course Description: In this class, students take a more in-depth look into the art of video post-production. Through demonstrations and hands-on experience, students learn advanced editing techniques with a comprehensive examination of Adobe Premiere Pro.

In the Spring of 2014, I’m still teaching Television News Production, and I developed the Backpack Journalism course.

Backpack Journalism Course Description: Journalism has been evolving for many years. Many TV stations are now looking for journalists that can take on several roles: reporter, camera operator, and editor. In this course, students will learn what it takes to be a solo journalist and apply those concepts through a practical learning method.

In the Fall of 2015, I developed a Video Résumé Building course.

Video Résumé Building Course Description: As a broadcast journalist, you will need a demo reel to showcase your talent and skill level to potential employers. Depending on the area of interest, your tape will include examples of reporting, camerawork, editing, or producing.

In the Summer of 2018, I began mentoring and teaching for Upward Bound at Arkansas Tech University. In Design and Film Multimedia, students learn the step-by-step process of crafting professional videos and delivering television content. This course teaches the fundamental skills of camera use, video editing using Adobe Premiere Pro CC, scriptwriting, on-air delivery, and studio equipment.

In the Fall of 2018, I was nominated and accepted as non-regular faculty to the Arkansas Tech University Graduate Faculty. The Graduate Council approved me to teach the following courses: JOUR 6133 Video Production for New Media, JOUR 6013 Visual Storytelling, and JOUR 5023 Social Media.

In the Fall of 2019, I began working with ATU's Director of Grants and Sponsored Programs to seek outside funding for studio renovations. I submitted a grant proposal for four hundred thousand dollars to update the studio and equipment from analog to HD.

In the Fall of 2020, I created and taught an intense hands-on training course for both graduates and undergraduates. Digital Media Production is a comprehensive equipment-based course, introducing students to the technical aspects of media equipment.

Digital Media Production Course Description: Students learn media production using the tools of cameras, film, audio production, lighting, drone photography, editing, and mobile TV production. This hands-on application will develop the physical and mental skills necessary to evolve in the TV production field.

Over the last six years, I have taught/created more than 20 Special Problems and Independent Study courses, including 3D Multimedia Animation, Special Effects with 3D Graphics, Advanced Videography, Advanced News Reporting, Television Management, and Intro to Illustrator.

Editor

In this position, I was responsible for the following:

- Editing news packages, VO/SOT's, VO's for daily newscasts.
- I Integrated video during the live broadcast.
- Shoot video as a backup photographer during football games, extreme weather, and other incidents.

Scholarship

My scholarly activity includes engaging with students in a real-world technical setting. The goal is to promote journalistic creativity across multiple platforms. Throughout my career at Tech, I've assisted students in various projects and created courses to accommodate individual students in an area of particular interest. My focus is to bridge the gap between scholarship and practical application by cultivating teaching opportunities; this ensures that students have the talents and skills to apply various crafts in the broadcast production industry. Some areas of application are; securing a crew and supervising students on the set of a professional video shoot, assisting a journalism student in the Fox News College Challenge, collaborating with the Director of Center for Community Engagement and Academic Outreach to create a promotional video for an Interdisciplinary Project-Based Learning course, designing/teaching more than 20 Special Problems and Independent Studies, aiding in mobile production broadcasts, and assisting producers in searching for relevant content to air on Tech TV.

In the fall of 2013, I was contacted by the New York company Hesterhouse Productions, requesting students to help with a music video. For three days, five students and I assisted with filming, lighting, and directing singer and songwriter Lance Carpenter's 12th and Gibson music video.

In the fall of 2015, I advised and assisted a student in the Fox News College Challenge. Together, we researched new laws concerning concealed carry on public campuses, interviewed local law enforcement and professors, and shot b-roll.

In the fall of 2018, a student and I created a promotional video to document the progression of an Interdisciplinary Project-Based Learning course where ATU students teamed up with Denali Water Solutions for a semester.

Over the past six years, I have created and taught more than 20 Special Problems and Independent Study courses, including; Advanced Videography, Television Management, Advanced News Reporting, 3D Multimedia Animation, Special Effects with 3D Graphics, and Intro to Illustrator.

I've led students in multi-camera, live studio, and remote production over the past nine years. I've taught students how to create content, search relevant topics, and produce live broadcasts. My students' stories and packages air weekly on a live show. In conjunction with studio broadcast, I train students on mobile production broadcasts for studio and sporting events. Involving students in such activities gives them an "outside of the classroom" work experience. Because of my extensive hands-on training in the field, studio, and mobile production trailer, my students acquire a vast understanding of technology in the industry, giving them the tools they need to begin a career in multimedia immediately following graduation.

(F) Required Texts: This is an open educational resource course and no text will be required. Resources for the course are accessible through the ATU library.

(G) Bibliography: Primary and Secondary resources will be available through free access from OER offered through the ATU library (<https://libguides.atu.edu/OER>)

(H) Rationale:

The Diversity Studies Certificate fulfills a critical gap in the ArkansasTech University academic curriculum by focusing on diverse and multicultural populations— including the study of power, privilege, and discrimination—and teaches students to practice civic engagement by enacting positive equitable change locally and globally. Students will take a core introduction course (3 hours), and three elective courses (9 hours) from a pre-approved list of courses. This certificate prepares students for diverse workplaces and multicultural environments, pushing them to be action-oriented, ethical leaders and requiring them to apply curricular knowledge directly to project-based learning to help their communities resolve conflicts.

The Diversity Studies Certificate will also fulfill a Core Component and Subcomponent of the Higher Learning Commission Criterion: first, that “[t]he institution provides opportunities for civic engagement in a diverse, multicultural society and globally-connected world, as appropriate within its mission and for the constituencies it serves” (1.C); second, that “the education offered by the institution recognizes the human and cultural diversity and provides students with growth opportunities and lifelong skills to live and work in a multi-cultural world” (3.B.3). The Diversity Studies Certificate aligns with the ATU Mission “as a responsive campus community providing opportunities for progressive intellectual development and civic engagement.” Furthermore, the diversity studies program enacts Phase 2.2 of the ATU Strategic Plan for Inclusive Excellence: “Encourage diversity, equity, inclusion, and social justice content throughout existing and potential curricula in both undergraduate and graduate-level programs.” As well, through its entirely online delivery, these certificates support the institution’s Strategic Plan Goal 2.4: “The University, through the College of eTech and in collaboration with other Colleges [...] will propose additional online educational opportunities [...]”

(I) Course Objectives

- Students will be introduced to the complexities of diversity through the study of identity determinants, such as race, class, ethnicity, gender, and sexuality.
- Students will study contemporary issues related to diversity within larger historical frameworks.
- Students will formulate and evaluate strategies for social engagement.
- Students will articulate the connection of diversity to their own lives.

(II) General Education Objective.

This course is not part of the general education core. However, it does address many of the general education objectives for ethical perspectives, critical thinking, civic engagement, and arts and humanities.

Archival Research Analysis (15%)

Using the bibliography, select one source and write a 3-4 page paper analyzing the document.

Quizzes (10%)

There will be two short quizzes. Each quiz will be worth five percent of your final course grade. Quizzes will assess your understanding of the readings and the concepts we discuss in class. Each quiz will take approximately 15 minutes.

Questions for consideration include: How does this current event reinforce or challenge dominant conceptions of diversity? What are the implications of the chosen event for those who are differently abled, are from low-income populations, or are immigrants?

Personal Journal (15%)

COURSE CONTENT

Weekly Assignments, Discussion Board Forums, Chat Sessions, Quizzes, and Exams

The weekly assignments, discussion board forums, chat sessions, quizzes, and exams will be made available in the Course Content section of Blackboard. The submission due date for each is shown in the Course Schedule below and in the Course Content section of your course. All assignments must be submitted by 11:59 p.m., on the assigned due date, unless you have received prior permission from the instructor to submit them late. In the event that the instructor changes the due dates, a notice will be posted in the Announcements section in Blackboard.

Participation in Discussion Board Forums and Chat Sessions

Students will be expected to participate in these collaboration activities. Feel free to express thoughts and ideas pertinent to the discussion. Courteous and civil discourse is expected and abusive or inappropriate comments will not be tolerated. Credit will be awarded throughout the term for continual, substantive participation in the discussion board forum.

Academic Misconduct

University policy will be followed. At a minimum, the student (and any student caught assisting in the misconduct) will be given an automatic “F” for the test/assignment in question and possibly an “F” for the course. Subsequent cases of plagiarism will result in a minimum of one letter grade course reduction for each incident. In addition, any student who aids another student in plagiarism (e.g., provides a completed homework assignment to another student for submission) will be treated as also being involved in plagiarism and appropriate penalties will apply. Egregious cases of plagiarism (i.e., large sections copied from another source) will result in an automatic “F” for the course.

Excessive Unexcused Absences/Missed Assignments

If, at any time during the semester, you miss three assignments, you will be referred to the Tech Early Warning Program. If you are unresponsive within the following two class sessions, you will be dropped from the course by your instructor with an “F” for excessive absences or non-performance. It is your responsibility to contact the instructor when you cannot attend class or are having a problem completing an assignment.

The deadline for dropping this course with a "W" is (add date). If you have a failing score and do not drop before the stated deadline, you will receive an "F" on your transcript for the course; therefore, it is in your best interest to monitor your status in the course and take advantage of the opportunity to withdraw with a "W" rather than remaining in the course and receiving an "F". Tech now has a very lenient withdrawal policy which eliminates the deadlines for receiving a "WP" (withdrawn with passing) or "WF" (withdrawn with failing) and has extended the period for withdrawing with just a "W" until almost the end of the semester.

You are responsible for explaining to the instructor the reason for absences due to sickness, accident or death in the family. For absences which make it difficult for you to contact the instructor, such as an emergency, you should contact the Student Services Office, Doc Bryan Student Services Center, Room 233, (479-968-0239) to have the instructor notified.

b. Total semester credit hours required for proposed program (Program range: 6-21 semester credit hours)

Fifteen (15) hours

c. New courses and new course descriptions:

IPBL 1999 Introduction to Diversity Studies

This course introduces the topic of diversity from a local to a global perspective using an interdisciplinary approach. This course encourages self-exploration and prepares the learner to explore and experience diverse environments. Topics include race, class, gender, identity, and ethnicity.

d. Program goals and objectives

1. To align program coursework with University Strategic Plan that “increase[s] opportunities for high-impact practices, experiential learning, and student engagement” (Goal 2, Item 2)

2. To ensure that students receiving the certificate have been introduced to the basics of diversity, equity, inclusion, and belonging, as well as having been grounded in the four components of the curriculum (improving engagement, uncovering bias, DEIB, and Cultural Environments).

3. To implement a DEIB curriculum in the certificate that is portable for employment. This goal also aligns with the University Strategic Plan, which, as the President indicates in her letter, “consider[s] external drivers such as enrollment, job market analysis for local, regional, state and global demands, post-pandemic effects, new business models for efficiencies and others.”

e. Expected student learning outcomes

1. Understand and articulate key concepts in diversity within multiple contexts, including race, class, gender, identity, and ethnicity.

2. Explain and interpret different frames of cultural reference and social constructions of identity, including a reflection of one's own and others' bias.
3. Apply diversity concepts to course materials that enable the pursuit of alternative perspectives.
4. Interact with diverse groups and demonstrate meaningful collaboration.

f. Documentation that program meets employer needs

Experts in the field of diversity and inclusion have recommend that colleges and universities offer more "diversity/equity/inclusion/racism education" (Benjamin Reese) and open the university to a "space for listening, learning and expansion of understanding the lived experience of all" (Adrianna Kezar). A specific diversity studies program is a statement to current and potential Black, Latinx, LGBTQ+, and disabled students that their perspectives and lives are not only valued on a campus and that those perspectives have an academic tradition respected on campus, but one that is a practical consideration for all students, whatever their background. For employers, it is no longer sufficient merely to show empathy with diversity groups, it is becoming necessary to demonstrate ability in working within and managing diverse groups (<https://www.weforum.org/agenda/2022/04/skills-build-diversity-equality-inclusion-belonging/>). Having ATU graduates who have exposure to the four basic categories in the certificate—Improving Engagement, Uncovering Bias, DEIB in Work and Society, and Cultural Environments—will provide a set of skills to function successfully within a range of social and cultural contexts, and will have a practical effect in their ability to function in the marketplace, whatever their field.

g. Student demand (projected enrollment) for proposed program:

Given the rising number of diversity services at Arkansas Tech University, the increased numbers of underrepresented groups at the institution (<https://www.atu.edu/diversity/>), and the additional student organization that provide assistance to LGBTQ+ and other underrepresented students, there should be considerable interest in a diversity certificate. This situation is becoming the enrollment reality for all institutions of higher learning, nationally and regionally, and is a major retention issue. A conservative estimate is that 15-20 students would be enrolled in the program by the second semester of implementation.

h. Program approval letter from licensure/certification entity, if required

None required

i. Name of institutions offering similar programs and the institution(s) used as model to develop proposed program:

University of Arkansas, Purdue University, Case Western Reserve University, University of Pennsylvania, University of Central Arkansas. Institution used as model—Cornell University.

j. Scheduled program review date (within 10 years of program implementation):

2033

9. Institutional curriculum committee review/approval date:

August 12, 2022

10. Will this program be offered on-campus, off-campus, or via distance delivery?
If yes, indicate mode of distance delivery. Mark *distance technology courses.

Students will be able to complete the program online with proper rotation of courses and scheduling of courses in both face-to-face and online modalities.

11. Identify off-campus location. Provide a copy of email notification to other institutions in the area of the proposed off-campus program offering and their responses; include your reply to the institutional responses.

No off-campus site projected
